

D: Criteria and General Principles for Good Practices

Criteria and General Principles	Description/Benchmark
Demonstrable Impact	Clear recorded change and positive impact
Contributes to any of 4 Collective Outcomes	The extent to which the practice has a demonstrable/measurable positive impact on reducing child casualty/fatality rates, increasing personal capacity of child survivors or increasing their access to education and social inclusion
Demonstrates inter-cluster collaboration related to at least 1/8 technical areas of collaboration	A key outcome should be to strengthen inclusiveness of the humanitarian response for all prioritized sub-groups, which should include child victims Describe how explosive ordnance impacts children capturing their priorities and needs from their perspective, and considering the specific barriers faced by child victims with disabilities, and the impact of intersecting factors such as age, gender and ethnicity Consider including a text box or similar to highlight the specific outcome, with rationale, for prioritized sub-groups, including child victims (e.g. “age, gender and disability”, or “reaching the furthest left behind”).
Sustainability	Potential for local actors to develop or sustain this action in the future
Demonstrates complementarity with relevant national authorities, supports local capacity, is community-driven with coherent linkages with pre-existing mechanisms	Is not a stand-alone project delivered by an international actor that will completely stop if international funding does. It is of value to the community who are involved in the continuation of the practice once it is established, along with other local actors
Context specific with clearly designated ownership	The practice has clear ownership that will facilitate its continuity as needed/required by the community after the end of the project cycle
Value for Money (DFID Framework)	Potential for local actors to develop or sustain this action in the future
Economy, Efficiency, Effectiveness, Equity	In the description of each strategic objective, make reference to children at risk and child victims. Explain how this result will advance towards inter-cluster collective outcomes, or how it will specifically benefit groups who are most at-risk. Consider having a specific SO under which EO child victims can be better highlighted. Price/Quality of inputs, how well are inputs converted to outputs? how well are outputs achieving the intended impact, are the benefits fair and inclusive of marginalized groups?
